le as has been the improvement in the shooting of the Army during the last few years, our experience has brought home to us the fact that our soldiers cannot as yet take the fullest advantage of the apon which has been placed in their hands, or use it with that skill and precision which are so essential war.

pply regret that this should be the case, I am not surprised, for I know from many years' anxious watch- progress of rifle shooting in our Army, how comparatively few officers take any real interest in this—by important part of the soldiers' training—particularly to those who belong to the Cavalry and nches of the Service. Too frequently the musketry course is still looked upon as a somewhat irk- s which has to be got through as quickly as possible, and sufficient consideration is seldom given as to results achieved are satisfactory or not.

f failure in rifle shooting depends entirely upon the officers, and I now most earnestly desire to impress he imperative necessity for their becoming experts in the use of the rifle themselves, and for assisting ng out a far more complete and finished system of instruction than exists at present.

upon this direction it is essential that young soldiers should be more carefully prepared to profit by the rifle range, and that they may be able so to profit, they must be taught everything which concerns the w to handle it with ease and confidence before they are introduced to the ranges.

o musketry training, the following points should be carefully considered and given effect to:—

ion.—The value of the instruction imparted to the men is entirely dependent on the ability of the officers on the zeal with which they enter on a task which demands careful preparation, patience, and energy. ired for that all officers will do their best to become competent instructors, and that commanding officers themselves of the fitness of their officers to teach, by watching them when at work with their non-commissioned officers and men, and will impress on them that keenness in musketry, and good results, will be the first ancement.

e way subordinate officers will be held responsible that the non-commissioned officers under their com- able instructors, and will not recommend any for promotion whom they do not consider as such. It is mand that, after the first broad principles of instruction have been communicated, nothing but constant eaching can make the perfect instructor; all non-commissioned officers should therefore be frequently instructors, and the plan of depending upon a few of the most capable, which is detrimental to the rest missioned officers of the battalion, should be discontinued.

ew training of recruits.—I consider it essential to every man's efficiency as a soldier, that his elementary a recruit should be conducted with the greatest patience, sympathy and judgment, and that it should st thorough and finished description. I regard the present short period of recruit training in musketry t, and I urge that a system of training be established, which will ensure that no recruit is pronounced the least acquainted with a thorough knowledge of musketry, and can handle his rifle with skill and confidence ditions, and in all positions.

ta training in musketry should commence 14 days after his arrival at the depôt, and should be continued e leaves to join his corps. During this time the instruction will be limited to care of arms, aiming, and ises.

nits join their corps daily instruction will be at once resumed.

ing will be the course:—

are of arms.

ne firing exercises, both in drill order and field service order—one exercise at least to be performed ly.

nstruction and practice in judging distance. A short exercise daily.

nstruction in firing from behind cover, and in snap shooting.

instruction in the theory, powers, and mechanism of the rifle and its ammunition.

A course of lectures and examinations on the whole of the above subjects.

ads are not to consist of more than ten men, but eight would be better.

3. Elementary instruction of trained soldiers.—When a proper system of recruit training is [illegible] soldier may be expected to be so expert with his rifle that repetition of elementary lessons will [illegible] As yet this has not been achieved, and until it has been, all soldiers now in the ranks must [illegible] frequently as possible in the same course as that laid down for the recruit.

4. Range practices.—The sole object of the range practices is to produce good marksmen, [illegible] arrived at hurriedly, or without due deliberation. The aim should not be to expend a certain [illegible] tion, but to make every shot fired a practical lesson; this can only be done by careful [illegible] explaining to the men the causes of failure. In cases, therefore, where time has to be considered, [illegible] do a part of the course thoroughly, than to try and get through the whole in a hurried and perfunctory [illegible] such cases General Officers Commanding will sanction the omission of shooting as the longer ranges [illegible] sider that the whole course cannot be advantageously carried out.

Exercise with blank ammunition, miniature cartridges, or merely "snapping," on the lines of [illegible] and snap shooting practices of the regulation course, should be frequently practised in quarters [illegible] It is by snap-shooting at short ranges that battles in the future will probably be decided, and [illegible] which can be fired on the rifle range, are not sufficient to enable a soldier to attain that high [illegible] which will henceforth be needed.

5. Auxiliary Forces.—These instructions apply to the Auxiliary Forces so far as it may be possible [illegible] out under the different conditions of service. Officers commanding regimental districts must [illegible] question as to how they can be applied. They must in the first instance especially consider [illegible] training of the permanent staff, and must satisfy themselves that they are kept up to a high standard [illegible] ability under the direction of adjutants of Auxiliary Forces, of whose qualifications they must be [illegible] cognisant. It is only by district commanders' personal interest and inspection of corps while at [illegible] that the desired end can be gained.

Officers commanding regimental districts must also give their special attention to the musketry [illegible] recruits, including that of officers. This is at present most unsatisfactory.

6. Course of Musketry Practice for 1903.—The official instructions for the musketry practices for [illegible] as far as possible, the principle that skill at short ranges is of the utmost importance, and that [illegible] a man to shoot at the longer ranges, or in advanced practices, until he has become a reliable [illegible] distances.

Commanding officers are hereby empowered to keep back such men as they consider require [illegible] in order that they may expend their ammunition at the shorter ranges.

I am convinced that straight shooting, which is the result of careful training, is at least as [illegible] modern battlefield as tactical combinations, to the practice of which so much time and trouble are [illegible] will be well for all to recollect that the best tactics may fail if, when the climax of the struggle [illegible] superiority of fire cannot be established.

I cannot, therefore, too strongly impress on every General Officer Commanding that it is his most [illegible] attain and maintain a high standard of efficiency in musketry throughout all ranks in his command, [illegible] vinced that this can only be attained by the exercise of constant personal interest and supervision [illegible] the senior officers, I shall hold every General Officer Commanding personally responsible that [illegible] means he may consider best will endeavour to attain a standard which can only be considered satisfactory [illegible] has attained the highest efficiency. With this view he should satisfy himself by frequent and [illegible] that a well ordered and progressive system of elementary instruction in musketry is carried into [illegible] command on the lines here indicated, and should specially endeavour to stimulate the interest [illegible] men's shooting and in recruit training. He should endeavour to overcome any difficulties [illegible] plying with the spirit of this order, and in regard to such as he may be unable to cope with he [illegible] them to the notice of the Adjutant-General.

7. Report to be made to the Adjutant-General.—On the 1st January, 1903, General Officers Commanding [illegible] to the Adjutant-General, in detail, the steps which they have taken to introduce a better system [illegible] explain the progress made up to date, while putting forward any suggestions which may [illegible] likely to be of use. They will, at the same time, furnish the result of their observations as to the [illegible] officers commanding regimental districts, and as to the general effect of this Order.

A.O. 238.—*Reservists rejoining the Colours.

In view of the large number of mobilized reservists and other troops who have been transferred [illegible] discharged since the termination of hostilities in South Africa, the Secretary of State for War has [illegible] any reservist of Section A, B, or C, with not less than a fair character, to rejoin the colours under [illegible] conditions:—

1. Only men who have been transferred or retransferred to the Reserve at a date subsequent to the [illegible] will be allowed to rejoin.

2. Such men must rejoin before the 1st of January, 1903.

3. Unmarried reservists, except those belonging to mounted corps, will only be allowed to rejoin for a [illegible] term of their original engagement.

4. Reservists belonging to mounted corps and married men will be allowed to rejoin for a period of [illegible] or such less period as would complete the term of their original engagement, and must extend [illegible] period from the date of rejoining. If during this period they can produce a guarantee of employment [illegible] retransferred to the Reserve to take up such employment.

5. Married men rejoining under paragraph 4 will be granted the privileges of the married [illegible] for which they rejoin, provided that they were in the enjoyment of such privileges at the date of their [illegible] colours.

6. Non-commissioned officers rejoining under paragraph 4 may be allowed to extend their service [illegible] term of their original engagement, instead of for a period of one year.

7. No refund of deferred pay or gratuity issued under Article 1123 of the Pay Warrant will be required.

8. If the men received a furlough gratuity, and desire to rejoin the colours [illegible] furlough will be considered as cancelled from the date on which they rejoin the colours. [illegible] to refund any portion of the furlough gratuity, but will be brought on regimental pay from the date [illegible] furlough is cancelled. If, however, any such men desire to continue on the furlough gratuity [illegible] they will not be brought on regimental pay until the date on which they actually rejoin.

9. On rejoining, an entry as follows will be made on the man's record of service:—"Rejoined [illegible] furlough with gratuity _____ (date)."

INSTRUCTIONS, &c.

A.O. 232.—*Grant of a Second South Africa War Medal.

1. His Majesty the King has been graciously pleased to approve that a second war medal [illegible] be granted in recognition of the services rendered by the troops in the later phases of the campaign and to reward those soldiers who, by their long service in the field, have brought the war to a successful [illegible] This medal will be known as the "King's South Africa Medal."

2. The ribbon will be orange, white, and green in three stripes of equal width, and so worn that the orange ribbon shall be on the right.

3. Provided the claims are approved by the Commander-in-Chief, the medal, in silver, will be granted to warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the British, Indian, and Colonial Forces, nursing practitioners and others employed with military hospitals in South Africa; and to all mentioned in Army Order 125 of 1901; provided that (a) they were actually serving in South Africa on or after 1st January, 1902, and (b) that on that date they had completed 18 months' war service, or subsequently [illegible] before the 1st June, 1902.

4. In interpreting this rule, the actual period of absence from duty either at home or in South Africa on account of wounds or sickness directly attributable to service in the field will be allowed to count, to make up the 18 months.

5. The medal will also be granted to officers, warrant officers, non commissioned officers and men who were invalided by reason of wounds received in action prior to the 1st January, 1902, thereby being unable to complete the aggregate service of 18 months in South Africa, provided they returned and served there for any period after the 1st January, 1902, and the 31st May, 1902, both dates inclusive.

6. Two clasps will also be granted—

(a.) A clasp, "South Africa, 1901," to all who served in South Africa between the 1st January, 1901, and the 31st December, 1901, both dates inclusive.

(b.) A clasp, "South Africa, 1902" to all who served in South Africa between the 1st January, 1902, and the 31st May, 1902, both dates inclusive.

7. The above clasps will be worn with the medal granted by Army Order 84 of 1901 by those entitled to them, if they are not entitled to receive the medal granted by this Order. If they are entitled to the medal granted by this Order, the above clasps will be worn with it.

8. Commanding officers and heads of departments will prepare nominal rolls, in triplicate, of those entitled to the medal and clasps, and forward them, as early as practicable, to the Adjutant-General, War Office, London, S.W. A supply of printed forms of rolls will be sent to each unit concerned, and a reserve supply will be held at the head-quarters of each regimental district for the use of individuals detached from their regiments.

9. The names of officers and warrant officers will be entered in order of rank, and those of the [illegible] and men in alphabetical order.

10. The names of officers and soldiers, except staff officers, will be entered on the roll of the unit to which they actually belong when the roll is prepared. The roll should also include the names of all men who have served with the unit during the war. In the event of enquiries having to be made regarding any [illegible] which cannot be certified by the officer commanding the unit, the roll should not be delayed pending the result of enquiries, but these names should be excluded and a supplementary roll rendered later.

11. In cases where it is known that individuals have served with more than one unit during the war, [illegible] should be made in the column of "Remarks" on the roll showing the unit with which they served, with their rank and regimental number therein.

12. General Officers who have relinquished their commands in South Africa, and officers who have left the staff in South Africa should send in medal rolls direct, if the staff with which they served has ceased to exist.

13. Chaplains and acting chaplains serving in South Africa will submit their medal claims through the chaplain to the General Officer Commanding.

Chaplains and acting chaplains now at home will submit their claims direct to the Under Secretary of State for War, marking the envelopes "Chaplains' Department."

14. Civilian medical practitioners and others employed with military hospitals in South Africa on the [illegible] will send in their medal claims through the Director-General, Army Medical Service, War Office, London, S.W., taking care to specify the units with which they served.

O. 237.—*Musketry Training—Regular and Auxiliary Forces.

ble as has been the improvement in the shooting of the Army during the last few years, our experience ears has brought home to us the fact that our soldiers cannot as yet take the fullest advantage of the weapon which has been placed in their hands, or use it with that skill and precision which are so essential n war.

eply regret that this should be the case, I am not surprised, for I know from many years' anxious watch- progress of rifle shooting in our Army, how comparatively few officers take any real interest in this of the important part of the soldier's training—particularly to those who belong to the Cavalry and anches of the Service. Too frequently the musketry course is still looked upon as a something that irks- which has to be got through as quickly as possible, and sufficient consideration is seldom given as to results achieved are satisfactory or not.

f future in rifle shooting depends entirely upon the officers, and I now most earnestly desire to impress the imperative necessity for their becoming experts in the use of the rifle themselves, and for assisting ing out a far more complete and finished system of instruction than exists at present.

st step in this direction it is essential that young soldiers should be more carefully prepared to profit by the he rifle range, and that they may be able so to profit, they must be taught everything which concerns the w to handle it with ease and confidence before they are introduced to the ranges.

to musketry training, the following points should be carefully considered and given effect to:—

tion.—The value of the instruction imparted to the men is entirely dependent on the ability of the officers ed on the zeal with which they enter on a task which demands careful preparation, patience, and energy. herefore that all officers should early be made competent instructors, and that commanding officers themselves of the fitness of their officers to teach, by watching them when at work with their non-com- officers and men, and will impress on them that keenness in musketry, and good results, will be the first h encouragement.

one way subordinate officers will be held responsible that the non-commissioned officers under their com- capable instructors, and will not recommend any for promotion whom they do not consider as such. It is in mind that, after the first broad principles of instruction have been communicated, nothing but constant teaching can make the perfect instructor; all non-commissioned officers should therefore be frequently s instructors, and the plan of depending upon a few of the most capable, which is detrimental to the rest commissioned officers of the battalion, should be discontinued.

ary training of recruits.—I consider it essential to every man's efficiency as a soldier, that his elementary ds recruit should be conducted with the greatest patience, sympathy and judgment, and that it should ast through and finished description. I regard the present short period of recruit training in musketry ent, and I regret that a system of training be established, which will ensure that no recruit is pronounced ed to be efficient in the thorough knowledge of musketry, and can handle his rifle with skill and confidence ll positions, and in all positions.

uit's training in musketry should commence 14 days after his arrival at the depôt, and should be continued ve drafts to join the corps. During this time the instruction will be limited to care of arms, aiming, and xercises.

drafts join their corps daily instruction will be at once resumed.

owing will be the course:—

Care of arms.
Instruction in aiming.
The firing exercises, both in drill order and field service order—one exercise at least to be performed daily.
Instruction and practice in judging distance. A short exercise daily.
Instruction in firing from behind cover, and in snap shooting.
Instruction in the theory, powers, and mechanism of the rifle and its ammunition.
A course of lectures and examinations on the whole of the above subjects.

quads are not to consist of more than ten men, but eight would be better.

3. Elementary instruction of trained soldiers.—When a proper system of recruit training is [illegible] soldier may be expected to be so expert with his rifle that repetition of elementary lessons will [illegible] As yet this has not been achieved, and until it has been, all soldiers now in the ranks must frequently as possible in the same course as that laid down for the recruit.

4. Range practices.—The sole object of the range practices is to produce good marksmen, [illegible] arrived at hurriedly, or without due deliberation. The aim should not be to expend a certain [illegible] tion, but to make every shot fired a practical lesson; this can only be done by careful [illegible] explaining to the men the causes of failure. In cases, therefore, where time has to be considered, [illegible] do a part of the course thoroughly, than to try and get through the whole in a hurried and perfunctory [illegible] such cases General Officers Commanding will sanction the omission of shooting at the longer ranges, [illegible] sider that the whole course cannot be advantageously carried out.

Exercise with blank ammunition, miniature cartridges, or merely "snapping," on the lines of [illegible] and snap shooting practices of the regulation course, should be frequently practised in quarters. [illegible] It is by snap-shooting at short ranges that battles in the future will probably be decided, [illegible] which can be fired on the rifle range, are not sufficient to enable a soldier to attain that high standard [illegible] which will henceforth be needed.

5. Auxiliary Forces.—These instructions apply to the Auxiliary Forces so far as it may be possible to carry out under the different conditions of service. Officers commanding regimental districts must use their discretion as to how they can be applied. They must in the first instance especially concern themselves with the training of the permanent staff, and must satisfy themselves that they are kept up to a high standard of efficiency, and ability under the direction of adjutants of Auxiliary Forces, of whose qualifications they must be fully cognisant. It is only by district commanders' personal interest and inspection of corps while in camp that the desired end can be gained.

Officers commanding regimental districts must also give their special attention to the musketry training of recruits, including that of officers. This is at present most unsatisfactory.

6. Course of Musketry Practice for 1903.—The official instructions for the musketry practices for 1903, as far as possible, the principle that skill at short ranges is of the utmost importance and that [illegible] a man to shoot at the longer ranges, or in advanced practices, until he has become a reliable shot [illegible] distances.

Commanding officers are hereby empowered to keep back such men as they consider require [illegible] in order that they may expend their ammunition at the shorter ranges.

I am convinced that straight shooting, which is the result of careful training, is at least as important on modern battlefield as tactical combinations, to the practice of which so much time and trouble are devoted. It will be well for all to recollect that the best tactics may fail if, when the climax of the struggle arrives, superiority of fire cannot be established.

I cannot, therefore, too strongly impress on every General Officer Commanding that it is his most important duty to attain and maintain a high standard of efficiency in musketry throughout all ranks in his command. I am convinced that this can only be attained by the exercise of constant personal interest and supervision on the part of the senior officers. I shall hold every General Officer Commanding personally responsible that, by such means he may consider best will endeavour to attain a standard which can only be considered satisfactory when he has attained the highest efficiency. With this view he should satisfy himself by frequent inspection that a well ordered and progressive system of elementary instruction in musketry is established throughout his command on the lines here indicated, and should specially endeavour to stimulate the interest of young men's shooting and in recruit training. He should endeavour to overcome any difficulties in the way of complying with the spirit of this order, and in regard to such as he may be unable to cope with he should report them to the notice of the Adjutant-General.

7. Report to be made to the Adjutant-General.—On the 1st January, 1903, General Officers Commanding will report to the Adjutant-General, in detail, the steps which they have taken to introduce a better system, and will explain the progress made up to date, while putting forward any suggestions which may seem to them likely to be of use. They will, at the same time, furnish the result of their observations as to the [illegible] officers commanding regimental districts, and as to the general effect of this Order.

A.O. 238.—*Reservists rejoining the Colours.

In view of the large number of mobilized reservists and other troops who have been transferred to the Reserve or discharged since the termination of hostilities in South Africa, the Secretary of State for War has decided that any reservist of Section A, B, or C, with not less than a fair character, to rejoin the colours under the following conditions:—

1. Only men who have been transferred or retransferred to the Reserve at a date subsequent to the [illegible] will be allowed to rejoin.

2. Such men must rejoin before the 1st of January, 1903.

3. Unmarried reservists, except those belonging to mounted corps, will only be allowed to rejoin for the unexpired term of their original engagement.

4. Reservists including to mounted corps and married men will be allowed to rejoin for a period of [illegible] or such less period as would complete the term of their original engagement, and must extend their service for a period from the date of rejoining. If during this period they can produce a guarantee of employment they will be retransferred to the Reserve to take up such employment.

5. Married men rejoining under paragraph 4 will be granted the privileges of the married establishment for which they rejoin, provided that they were in the enjoyment of such privileges at the date of their leaving the colours.

6. Non-commissioned officers rejoining under paragraph 4 may be allowed to extend their service for the term of their original engagement, instead of for a period of one year.

7. No refund of deferred pay or gratuity issued under Article 1123 of the Pay Warrant will be made.

8. If the men received a furlough gratuity, and desire to rejoin the colours with it in the [illegible] furlough will be considered as cancelled from the date on which they rejoin the colours. [illegible] to refund any portion of the furlough gratuity, but will be brought on regimental pay from the date on which the furlough is cancelled. If, however, any such men desire to continue on the furlough gratuity [illegible] they will not be brought on regimental pay until the date on which they actually rejoin.

9. On rejoining, an entry as follows will be made on the man's record of service:—"Rejoined from furlough with gratuity _____ (date)."

... ole as has been the improvement in the shooting of the Army during the last few years, our experience ... has brought home to us the fact that our soldiers cannot as yet take the fullest advantage of the ... upon which has been placed in their hands, or use it with that skill and precision which are so essential ... war.

... ly regret that this should be the case. I am not surprised, for I know from many years' anxious watch- ... progress of rifle shooting in our Army, how comparatively few officers take any real interest in this—by ... important part of the soldiers training—particularly to those who belong to the Cavalry and ... ice of the Service. Too frequently the musketry course is still looked upon as a bore that irks ... which has to be got through as quickly as possible, and sufficient consideration is seldom given as to ... results achieved are satisfactory or not.

... ure in rifle shooting depends entirely upon the officers, and I now most earnestly desire to impress ... importance necessary for their becoming experts in the use of the rifle themselves, and for assisting ... our a far more complete and finished system of instruction than exists at present.

... —The value of the instruction imparted to the men is entirely dependent on the ability of the officers ... on the zeal with which they enter on a task which demands careful preparation, patience, and energy. ... for that all officers who are to be detailed to be competent instructors, and that commanding officers ... avail themselves of the services of their officers as teachers, by watching them when at work with their non com- ... and men, and will impress on them that keenness in musketry, and good results, will be the first ... requirement.

It is ... ... that, after the first broad principles of instruction have been communicated, nothing but constant ... training can make the perfect instructor; all non-commissioned officers should therefore be frequently ... instructors, and the plan of depending upon a few of the most capable, which is detrimental to the rest ... ... officers of the battalion, should be discontinued.

3. Elementary instruction of trained soldiers.—When a proper system of recruit training has been carried out, a soldier may be expected to be so expert with his rifle that repetition of elementary lessons will not be necessary. As yet this has not been achieved, and until it has been, all soldiers now in the ranks must attend as frequently as possible in the same course as that laid down for the recruit.

4. Range practices.—The sole object of the range practices is to produce good marksmen, and not to get scores arrived at hurriedly, or without due deliberation. The aim should not be to expend a certain amount of ammunition, but to make every shot fired a practical lesson; this can only be done by careful instruction, and by explaining to the men the causes of failure. In cases, therefore, where time has to be considered, it is better to do a part of the course thoroughly, than to try and get through the whole in a hurried and perfunctory manner. In such cases General Officers Commanding will sanction the omission of shooting at the longer ranges, if they consider that the whole course cannot be advantageously carried out.

Exercise with blank ammunition, miniature cartridges, or merely "snapping," on the lines of the short and snap shooting practices of the regulation course, should be frequently practised in quarters during the winter. It is by snap-shooting at short ranges that battles in the future will probably be decided, and not by the few which can be fired on the rifle range, are not sufficient to enable a soldier to attain that high standard of efficiency which will henceforth be needed.

5. Auxiliary Forces.—These instructions apply to the Auxiliary Forces so far as it may be possible to carry out under the different conditions of service. Officers commanding regimental districts must use their discretion as to how they can be applied. They must in the first instance especially concern themselves with the training of the permanent staff, and must satisfy themselves that they are kept up to a high standard of efficiency under the direction of adjutants of Auxiliary Forces, of whose qualifications they must be fully cognizant. It is only by district commanders' personal interest and inspection of corps while at drill that the desired end can be gained.

Officers commanding regimental districts must also give their special attention to the musketry training of recruits, including that of officers. This is at present most unsatisfactory.

6. Course of Musketry Practice for 1903.—The official instructions for the musketry practices for 1903 are as far as possible, the principle that skill at short ranges is of the utmost importance, and that it is better for a man to shoot at the longer ranges, or in advanced practices, until he has become a reliable shot at short distances.

Commanding officers are hereby empowered to keep back such men as they consider require further practice in order that they may expend their ammunition at the shorter ranges.

I am convinced that straight shooting, which is the result of careful training, is at least as important on the modern battlefield as tactical combinations, to the practice of which so much time and trouble are devoted. It will be well for all to recollect that the best tactics may fail if, when the climax of the struggle arrives, superiority of fire cannot be established.

I cannot, therefore, too strongly impress on every General Officer Commanding that it is his most important duty to attain and maintain a high standard of efficiency in musketry throughout all ranks in his command. I am convinced that this can only be attained by the exercise of constant personal interest and supervision on the part of the senior officers. I shall hold every General Officer Commanding personally responsible that, by such means he may consider best will endeavour to attain a standard which can only be considered satisfactory when every man has attained the highest efficiency. With this view he should satisfy himself by frequent and searching inspection that a well ordered and progressive system of elementary instruction in musketry is carried out throughout his command on the lines here indicated, and should specially endeavour to stimulate the interest of young men's shooting and in recruit training. He should endeavour to overcome any difficulties which may arise in applying with the spirit of this order, and in regard to such as he may be unable to cope with he should report them to the notice of the Adjutant-General.

7. Report to be made to the Adjutant-General.—On the 1st January, 1903, General Officers Commanding will report to the Adjutant-General, in detail, the steps which they have taken to introduce a better system of musketry, and will explain the progress made up to date, while putting forward any suggestions which they may consider will be likely to be of use. They will, at the same time, furnish the result of their observations as to the value of the instruction to officers commanding regimental districts, and as to the general effect of this Order.

A.O. 238.—*Reservists rejoining the Colours.

In view of the large number of mobilized reservists and other troops who have been transferred to the Reserve or discharged since the termination of hostilities in South Africa, the Secretary of State for War has decided that any reservist of Section A, B, or C, with not less than a fair character, to rejoin the colours under the following conditions:—

1. Only men who have been transferred or retransferred to the Reserve at a date subsequent to the 31st March, 1902, will be allowed to rejoin.

2. Such men must rejoin before the 1st of January, 1903.

3. Unmarried reservists, except those belonging to mounted corps, will only be allowed to rejoin for the unexpired term of their original engagement.

4. Reservists belonging to mounted corps and married men will be allowed to rejoin for a period of three years, or such less period as would complete the term of their original engagement, and must extend their service for the period from the date of rejoining. If during this period they can produce a guarantee of employment they will be retransferred to the Reserve to take up such employment.

5. Married men rejoining under paragraph 4 will be granted the privileges of the married reservist for which they rejoin, provided that they were in the enjoyment of such privileges at the date of their leaving the colours.

6. Non-commissioned officers rejoining under paragraph 4 may be allowed to extend their service beyond the term of their original engagement, instead of for a period of one year.

7. No refund of deferred pay or gratuity issued under Article 1123 of the Pay Warrant will be made.

8. If the men received a furlough gratuity, and desire to rejoin the colours at the end of their furlough, the furlough will be considered as cancelled from the date on which they rejoin the colours. They will not be required to refund any portion of the furlough gratuity, but will be brought on regimental pay from the date on which the furlough is cancelled. If, however, any such men desire to continue on the furlough granted on their transfer, they will not be brought on regimental pay until the date on which they actually rejoin.

9. On rejoining, an entry as follows will be made on the man's record of service:—"Rejoined from furlough with gratuity _____ (date)."
